Is Prohibition Going?

Ontario has spoken.
After ten years' trial of the law known as the O. T. A., the citizens of Ontario, by an overwhelming verdict, have declared in favor of a measure of government control in dealing with the liquor question. That verdict of public opinion speaks for itself.

Critics, from Quebec on the Atlantic, to British Columbia on the Pacific, are now working out various systems of government control of liquor. How long will it be before this system is extended east to the Maritimes?

Will it ever extend south over the international line?

Flouting the Commission.

Evidence sought but not obtained at the sittings of the Customs Commission at Victoria seems to show that a departmental forgetfulness, part of the mental equipment of a good runner. One doubtful captain of a whisky ship would not even remember where he took his boat on the last trip.

It is to be hoped the Commission has been given power to deal with such cases of suddenly lost memory. Otherwise the inquiry is fairly liable to be turned into a farce.

Scientists Join Forces.

Dr. T. says that in future all that is accomplished by research work in Canada, Japan, or the United States will be upon the basis of the world surrounding the Pacific ocean will be made the common property of the scientists of all countries. When the scientific has accomplished during and since the war by working into the hidden secrets of nature is ground for expecting that very important results will come from co-operation in the course of the next decade. Canada, with an extended frontage on the Pacific and a wealth of resources to develop, stands to share largely in whatever developments follow the explorations of the scientists in and around the western sea.

Mr. Treble's Double Victory.

Mr. Herman Treble of Wembley has gained the unprecedented distinction of winning the grand championship in wheat and the same in oats at the Chicago International. That is a remarkable achievement, and all Alberta will share in the prestige of the practical breeder.

Alberta grain will stand higher in the markets of the United States because of this proof of its superiority. The attention of United States farmers, farm publications and agricultural authorities will be directed to this province as the area which produces the best wheat and the best oats grown in the world. It will be strange if the movement of people from the United States into the Peace River country is not stimulated as a direct result of this demonstration of the marvelous richness of the northern soil.

Mr. Guthrie's Fears.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie is afraid that the ties of Empire may be weakened by the definition given at the London of the position of the self-governing Dominions stand in relation to the conduct of foreign policy. He adds: "I doubt very much if in practice this affords anything more than the Dominions have actually enjoyed for many years."

Then why the alarm? If the Dominions have actually "enjoyed for many years" the status which they are now officially declared to possess, where is the danger that they will proceed to drift toward separation? It was not but ten years ago that the Dominions had been doing very drifting in that direction. Berlin had, and they had, very positive convictions to the contrary.

Mr. Dunning Intervenes.

Hon. Charles Dunning intervened in the controversy by being the heads of the two railway systems and the representatives of the trainmen together to resume negotiations; and it is reported to have made plain to the public that whether come-down trains and coal trains are to continue to roll along the railway lines.

Mr. Dunning has lived too long on the prairie to have any illusions about the consequences of a stoppage of the daily distribution of food and coal. He knows, as every other westerner knows, that if these services were paralyzed for a week there would be suffering in the prairie communities, and that in some localities people would be in actual danger of freezing to death. It might be argued that a dispute of course in this country that no dispute or other controllable factor will be allowed to interrupt the forwarding of food and fuel supplies in the winter season. It is the plain right of the public to demand this, and to expect that all parties concerned shall abide by the condition.

It is regrettable if the Minister of Railways has found it necessary to assert that principle; but for doing it he deserves the commendation of everyone who understands what a food shortage or a fuel shortage means in a prairie country.

Interruptions

By EDGAR A. GUEST

It will be a lovely evening, and I of a summer day and an hour ago. But the telephone rang and the sound of the wire. "Mr. Brown, what time is it?"

Two minutes later I am not alone still nursing cups at Mr. Brown. And a man comes in to tell me.

It goes to the very bone more, said I. "I have been waiting for the telephone. But the telephone rang and the time I heard."

Back now at my desk I sit. But a friend dropped in for an idle chat. And though there was a time the phone was peeping I couldn't get to it in a smiling mood.

And the telephone rings and the agents call. And I can get an hour to myself at all. For whether by day or whether by night we are always the same when I want to write.

Comment

FRANCE AND ITALY

General Journal: Whatever views we may hold on the policy of France, nobody can deny the fact that the violent death of the Italian Prime Minister would be a catastrophe for his own country first of all, and for Europe afterwards. For M. Monotti, despite his linguistic aptitude, is one of the boldest of European peace and order. What is now understood, however, is that his attempt on the Italian life the anger of the anti-social agents.
